NEWS OF THE THEATERS

ARTHUR SIDMAN'S DEATH WILL CAUSE WIDESPREAD REGRET.

He and His Wife Were Preparing to Appear in a Full Play-"Ben-Hur" at Chicago.

The news of the death of Arthur Sidman will be received with regret by the theatergoers of this city. He and his wife were preparing to leave Higgins's Beach, Maine, where they had spent the summer, to begin rehearsals with their company in their new play, "York State Folks." The first performance was to have been given at the Chestnut-street Theater, Philadelphia,

Mr. and Mrs. Sidman played at the Park Theater here for several years. They usually came with Robert Fulgora's vaudeville shows, and they always were "head-lin-They had a sketch telling the story of an old farmer that came to the city to visit his daughter and her husband. The old man agreed, but in a few minutes returned to the darkened parlor, clad in his night robe, and pensively picked out an old tune on the piano. The left here six years ago for Wisconsin, close of the sketch was quietly dramatic and never failed to touch the whole audience. Last season Mr. and Mrs. Sidman were seen at the Grand Opera House in a little play called "Back Home," supplemental to their previous sketch.

The success of these two players all over the country led Manager Fred E. Wright to believe Mr. and Mrs. Sidman would be successful in a full play, and he made a contract with them to produce a new comedy entitled "York State Folks." A company was organized and early in the summer a few trial performances were given with success that made the venture a surety. Mr. Wright ordered new scenery for the play and an extensive equipment of adcertising lithographs. He and Mr. and Mrs. Sidman were enthusiastic over the prospect this season. Mr. Sidman's death was entirely unexpected.

Arthur Sidman excelled in that he could produce an effect without the least strain, On the stage he was always quiet and gentle and his personality took hold of an audience as soon as he appeared. He had the regard of a large clientele and he and Sol Smith Russell often have been spoken of together.

Japan's Greatest Actor.

It is reported that Danjuro, Japan's greatest actor, is coming to this country. Whenever he plays in Tokio there is an audience of at least 2,500, and there is always a large crowd which is unable to obtain admission. The play in which he excels is a drama portraying a conflict befeudal lord. This field is the most remarkable oil field in the world. It is a proved field in which a dry hole has never been found.

Its oil sands are known to be 600 feet deep. This is the report of L. Dort, oil expert, who has examined every field of the United States and Russia for the Standard Oil Company.

The lands of the Indiana Oil Co. are in the heart of this proved field.

Wells are drilled only 115 feet apart and every well gets oil. Two men of this city are now drawing 120 per cent. on shares in a company operating on lands adjacent to us.

The Globe Oil Co., adjoining us, is paying 60 per cent. on the market price of its stock. It has only four or five wells, each producing 300 to 500 barrels daily.

The lands contain rich deposits of superior asphaltum. It is on the surface; no mining is necessary.

The Standard Oil Company is paying its laborers 7-days' pay for 6-days' work in order to get tanks completed. There is a ready market for

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 13.-Andy Bezenah, Streator, Ill., went the limit in a twentyround boxing contest at the Interurban that if both were on their feet it was to be a draw allowed no decision by Referee Marks, of Alexandria. Sprague did the leading, and showed good ring generalship in the hammering on the neck and face like a bull dog. It was a clever exhibition throughout. On points Sprague would have Mr. and Mrs. William Daggett and Miss won and he worked hard for the telling Daggett have returned from Maxinkuckee. blow, making many vicious lunges. The

He said to the sheriff of Delaware county and the metropolitan police commissioners of Muncie that he looked

Capt. J. B. Wirt, who collects mail in the apolis and Haughville, added another runaway last night to the long string of simi-

West street, and, after running several squares, began to slack speed. The captain Miss Della Chambers, of New York, her stop and then fell out near Tenth street. The horse cantered on down the street and was stopped. His mail was scattered for three squares and was picked up by patrolmen. The animal was bruised in several places and the captain sustained several cuts and bumps about the head. As is his custom in his accidents, the first thing he did after picking himself up was to go to

Captain Wirt has the reputation of having runaways with about every change of the moon, and comes out more or less disabled. His closest call was last April, when he was knocked down by a West Michigan-street car, near the White-river correspondence between them, which cul- | bridge, and, in the language of the motor-
